

TURCO-RUSSIAN WAR.

The Beginning of the End--An Armistice About to be Concluded.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 9.—The Danube is thoroughly frozen over. The Russians in Bulgaria have only three weeks' supplies. Great difficulty about forage is apprehended, unless communication is soon restored.

BRIGADIER, Jan. 9.—It is understood from London, advising Turkey to open negotiations with Russia through a military commander, has been received here. A strong disposition is evinced to accept the offer.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—A letter from Constantinople says the Turkish commander-in-chief has been ordered to conclude an armistice with the Russian commander.

A special to the Times from Berlin, says that Russia, having consented to enter into negotiations, has stipulated, even if the preliminaries of peace are not settled beforehand, a conclusion of the war is probable.

[NOTE.—This is probably the real basis of the apparent accord between Russia and England.]

The latter efforts of England have been reported to be directed to fixing a limit to the powers of commanders in arranging a truce, and preventing them from discussing Russian stipulations, which might contain preliminaries of peace, that there are limits to her claim to a separate settlement, even if Russia had admitted along with the only question being whether the Czar would consent to have these limits fixed at present, and on demand of only one power.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—According to the Times Berlin correspondent, who is in a good position to know, a compromise has been reached, rather favorable to the British view. When the English Cabinet asked Russia to state her conditions for peace or an armistice, and Russia declined, she began a new negotiation to secure the separation of an armistice from terms of peace. The Russian official press have since persistently declared that Russia was not ready to abandon her claim to conclude a single handed peace. England's position during the negotiations has been stated to be that she would take no steps towards encouraging an armistice if proceedings to that end were going to be used to fasten upon Europe a series of accomplished facts which would not be submitted for subsequent ratification as a matter of course.

This morning's announcements indicate the success of the English views. These announcements are further confirmed by the first dispatch just received by Reuters from Constantinople: "The Council of Ministers have agreed upon the conditions of an armistice, and have submitted the same for the Sultan's approval. In opening direct negotiations purely for a military armistice, the Russian Government has made a concession."

There is a strong movement in favor of the bill of Representative Robbins, of North Carolina, for the reduction of the tobacco tax from 24 to 12 cents and specific liquors from ninety to forty cents.

DEATH OF KING VICTOR EMANUEL.

ROME, Jan. 9.—The King of Italy died at 3:25 a. m. this afternoon. King Victor Emmanuel received the consolations of religion before his death. In the afternoon, sacraments were administered to King Victor Emmanuel, who received the Priest with great serenity. The King then summoned Prince Humbert, his son, and his wife, Princess Margherita, to his bedside, with whom he conversed a few moments; afterwards the military eruption followed him. He addressed to every one present a few words, and a few moments after, the King, surrounded by his family, passed peacefully into the life beyond.

FIRE AT LAURINBURG.

Estimated Loss, $20,000.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Jan. 9.—A disastrous fire occurred at Laurinburg, Richmond county, this morning. The principal losses are Hector McLean, B. J. Riverbank, Z. Fountain, M. J. McRoy Bros., J. S. Cronch, A. Cameron & Co., Cross, Ledman & Co., E. Benson, D. Edwards and the First Office. The total loss is between $20,000 and $30,000, with little insurance. The fire is thought to be of incendiary origin.

New Hampshire Republican Convention.

CONCORD, N. H., January 9th.—The Republican convention nominated Benj. F. Prescott by acclamation for governor. The proceedings were stormy, with some personalities and a smelting of the old party issues.

The Bank Presidents.

NEW YORK, January 9.—The Convention of Bank Presidents adopted the following: "Resolved, That the members be appointed, to consist of five bank officers from New York, three each from Boston, Baltimore and Philadelphia, together with three members from each of the several other cities, to be named by the several clearing house associations of the country to their respective members, inviting and requesting the aid of the institutions to join in such memorial and petition, and further, to urge upon them and through them upon the merchants, traders and manufacturers, as speedily as

LOUISBURG.

A Beautiful Thriving Town--Churches, Schools, Lodges, &c.--County Roads--Hon. J. J. Davis--Gold Mines--The News.

[Special correspondence of the News.]

Louisburg is one of the oldest incorporated towns in North Carolina and is situated on the Tar River, thirteen miles west of Frankfort, by rail measurement, but when the bad condition of the roads is considered, it is twice that distance. The business portion of the town is situated on the banks of the river, while the residences, many of them very pretty, and located in the midst of beautiful groves of forest trees, are erected on the hills stretching away from the river, to a distance of a mile and a half. The general appearance of the town is pleasing to the eye, the residences are tastefully built, with spacious yards; the stores would do credit to a much larger town; the churches, number, style and architecture show that the citizens are a community of Christians, who appreciate the advantages of religion and contribute of their substance to their religious professions; the school buildings, would be considered ornaments to a city, while the schools themselves, male and female, are unsurpassed for age, preparation, and merit. Louisburg is in good condition, the streets are in good condition, and the general appearance of the town indicates peace, prosperity, and happiness.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The general tenor of the speech of Col. Shaw, of the House of Representatives, on the facts, the impression is strengthened that the federal military force, both on the part of the United States and Mexico, is maintained on the Rio Grande border.

Apprehension of serious complications between the two governments is lessened.

When the Senate assembled to-morrow there will be 37 Republicans, 36 Democrats, and 1 Independent.

The South is not represented in the woman's suffrage convention. Mrs. Hooker advocated reconstruction of the police. She favored the introduction of the female element into the force. Mrs. President Sara Spencer, in closing yesterday's exercises said: The Republican Senators were alarmed, as there was a dying party at the capital, but they would gladly grab woman suffrage or anything else if they thought it would save them. She gave notice that she would introduce a bill to amend the act of 1867, which gave the right of suffrage to the colored male citizen.

Some of the bonhomie of Collector Fernell of the Raleigh District, Carolina, are here with the avowed purpose of applying to the Secretary of the Treasury for release from the duties of the bill of Representative Robbins, of North Carolina, for the reduction of the tobacco tax from 24 to 12 cents and specific liquors from ninety to forty cents.

Captain Eads received his half million dollars to-day on account of the jetties. In honor of the great engineer they propose calling them Eads' Jetties.

The amendment offered by Representative Cabell, allows a drawback of tax on all tobacco which manufacturers may have on hand when the reduction goes into effect.

posts for so much less than the salary allowed by law. In Magellan county the judge gets $120 a year, and Judge Shuck, of Meade, is satisfied with an annual stipend of $90.

In the trial of Grove Kennedy, at Lancaster, Ky., last week, for the murder of his uncle, twenty-eight witnesses testified for the defense. Of these witnesses one had killed five men, seven had killed each his man, one had killed a woman, four were charged with malicious shooting, four had been shooting scrapes, and three, or four, were engaged in the riot of 1871.

A Richmond photographer took a picture of the procession at the inauguration of Governor Holliday, which was led by General Lindsay Walker, H.H.'s chief of artillery, a son of Anak, six feet five inches high and mounted on a horse to match his proportions. When the procession halted on Main street Marshall Walker was some distance down the line, and so in imminent peril of not being included down to posterity with the rest of the procession. Galloping to the front rank he took up his position, and that photograph represents a big man on a big horse, and nothing else.

What of the vacancy? It is maintained by some, outside the Justices of the Supreme Court, that the vacancy occasioned by the death of Chief Justice Pearson should not be supplied at all. Because, as is claimed, the amended Constitution, which provides that "the Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and two Associate Justices," being now in operation, a Supreme Bench which consists of as many as three justices is a constitutional body. The existing bench has four justices upon it, and is, therefore, its own undoing, inasmuch as it is not, with one to spare. This argument is based upon the idea that the saving clause of the fourth article of the amended constitution which provides that the amendments "shall not have the effect to vacate any office or term of office, now existing under the constitution of the State," protects the incumbent of the office, not the office.

This argument will not stand the test of sound reasoning, or even the plain construction of the language of the constitution. It is almost too plain for discussion, that the term of office is protected, so that the term of office of the late Chief Justice continues until January 1st, 1911.

While it is the design of the amended constitution to reduce the number of Justices of the Supreme Court, upon grounds of public economy, reductions by death were not at all in contemplation. It is made obligatory upon the Governor to supply all vacancies occurring in the offices provided for in the fourth article of the constitution. Justices of the Supreme Court among the number; and there is no escape from the duty of naming a successor to Chief Justice Pearson.

The vacancy is to be supplied by appointment of the Governor, under section 31, Article 4 of the State Constitution, which reads as follows: "All vacancies occurring in the offices provided for by this article of the Constitution shall be filled by the appointment of the Governor, unless otherwise provided for, &c. There is no other provision of the law applicable to the case. So that there can be no question whatever about the power of the Governor to appoint. But the question may be raised, shall the Governor appoint a Chief Justice, or only an Associate Justice, leaving to the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court the right to name one of their number Chief Justice.

The old constitution provided that the general assembly should "appoint Judges of the Supreme Court," and conferred upon those Judges the authority "to appoint one of their number to preside who shall thereafter be styled Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina." Under this provision, which was named Chief Justice Nash, it is recorded that the Judges of the Supreme Court met on the 29th of December, 1858, and tendered the Chief Justiceship to Judge Ruffin who declined it; and that it was then tendered to Judge Pearson, who accepted the appointment. The Chief Justiceship was not then an office; it was simply a title—a "Judge" styled Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. But under the constitution of 1868, the Chief Justiceship is an office for the 5th section of the fourth article says: "The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and four Associate Justices," very different from the language of the old constitution, that the General Assembly should "appoint Judges of the Supreme Court," and that those Judges "shall appoint one of their number to preside who shall thereafter be styled Chief Justice," &c. Judge Pearson himself regarded it as an "office." The parties that elected him so regarded it.

Our law in this respect is analogous to the law of the United States. Section 673 of the Revised Statutes says: "The Supreme Court of the United States shall consist of a Chief Justice of the United States and eight Associate Justices, any six of whom shall constitute a quorum."

Section 675 provides that, "In case of a vacancy in the office of Chief Justice, or of his inability to perform the duties and powers of his office, they shall devolve upon the Associate Justice who is first in precedence, until such disability is removed, or another Chief Justice is appointed and duly qualified." Appointments under this section are made by the President, by virtue of the second section of the fourth article of the Constitution of the United States. When Chief Justice Chase died the vacancy was supplied by President Grant, in the appointment of Morrison R. Waite. If the views reported to be entertained by the Associate Justices of our Supreme Court are correct, Chase's successor would have been named by the Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States. The law of our State is not less plain in respect to the office of Chief Justice than the United States law. Gov. Vance will appoint a Chief Justice, and he will take his seat; and we shall be surprised if the Associate Justices make opposition there, notwithstanding the prevalent rumors. And Gov. Vance's appointment will draw the salary; and no one else.

THE TRIBUNE ALMANAC for 1878 is one of the most complete and useful political manuals ever published in this country. Its table of contents presents many new features, which will add to its long-established and well-earned popularity. The chapter on the Constitutional changes and pending amendments in various States is of permanent value. The Almanac contains, also, all that is significant in the campaign literature of the year: the Party Platforms in the principal States of the Union; the President's Inaugural; the Civil Service orders and Secretary Sherman's letter on the Four per cent bonds. The statistical tables contain the latest figures relating to foreign trade, the currency, the National banks, the savings banks, the revenues and expenditures of the Government, Internal Revenue and Customs receipts, and a thousand other matters to which every legislator, politician and business man has occasion to refer. The Almanac contains nothing that does not bear close relations to the public questions of the time. It has been compiled and edited by the Hon. Edward M. Johnson, long Clerk of the House of Representatives, and a statistician of National reputation.

The Washington Star gives this excellent advice to young men: "The punics and strikes and the culmination of the ever-impending crisis in their depression of the various professions and trades seem to have overlooked the farmer. Plentiful crops of wheat, corn, oats and potatoes, as well as business suspensions, bankruptcies, defalcations and suicides, have marked the past year. More wheat by fifty million bushels has been produced than in any previous year. Corn, oats and potatoes flourish in great abundance. We can send more than a hundred million bushels of wheat across the ocean to bless the starving Turk, the bellicose Russian, and the smug and fuming Englishman, and to fill our own pockets with gold, or silver, or paper, just as the wisdom of our Solons shall determine. The time has at last come when Quesnay's maxim that the earth is the sole producer of wealth may be appropriately quoted. Let our young men become horny handed farmers, since from the soil all treasures seem to flow.

The United States consul at Bradford, England, in a recent dispatch to the Department of the State, refers to the subject of trade between England and the United States, and suggests that the choice words of America might be "exported" to England, and vice versa, at present, if energetic steps were taken to introduce them in furniture or house furnishings. Hickory is imported in the form of carriage spokes and hubs, but the equally desirable ash, and second growth of white oak are but little used, and in short the great variety of wooden household articles which are so numerous in this country, and which are classed under the general head of "wooden ware," are but little known in Great Britain, and it is thought that a trade could be advantageously established in these articles. North Carolina has a vast amount of splendid timber of the choicest kind. Why can not an export trade in it be established?

The New York Herald says the Aldermanic committee which was appointed in July to investigate the Ring frauds having concluded its labors have made a long report to the Board of Aldermen summing up the result. The committee make it appear that between January 1, 1889, and July 1, 1891, the Ring had received from the city treasury by the corrupt practices of the Ring, and that this does not include the amount stolen by the Ring in the Board of Supervisors between 1890 and 1896. "It is safe to assume," says the report, "that from 1890 until July, 1891, the people of this city have been robbed to the extent of fifty millions of dollars at least." The amount recovered by all the suits amounting to only $1,119,525, and when the legal expenses are deducted there is left as the net amount recovered only $876,241, or less than one-fiftieth of the amount stolen. That beats the stealing of the North Carolina ring, in the palmist days of Radicalism.

Gov. Vance has appointed a colored barber in Raleigh, Adjutant of a colored regiment—Redeemer Times.

This would be very true, but for several rather pertinent circumstances: 1. Gov. Vance has not appointed "a colored barber in Raleigh" Adjutant of anything, 2. There is no "colored regiment" in North Carolina. 3. The appointment of Adjutants for regiments of the North Carolina State Guard, either white or colored, does not lie with the Governor but with the commanding officer of such regiment.

We learn that the cost of the machine necessary for a No. 1, first class cotton factory is far less than we had supposed. It is not more than about one third as much as is usually supposed. We are promised the figures in a few days.

The South and West are entitled to model the Revenue laws of this country: for while New England pays revenue to the Government to the amount of $4,000,000, the West and Southern States pay $27,000,000.

Victor EMMANUEL, King of Italy, died yesterday afternoon, at Rome. Prince Humbert, his heir apparent, was immediately proclaimed King. "The King is dead. Long live the King!"
